JUSTICE AND RIGHT

VOLUME XLIX

GRAYLING, MICHIGAN, APRIL 7, 1927

OSCAR P. SCHUMANN, Editor and Proprietor

NUMBER 14

RIGHT IN THE SOLAR PLEXUS

REPUBLICANS TREATED ROUGH AT POLLS

Bright skies adorned the welkin Monday morning and everything pointed to an overwhelming victory. Old Sol smiled and beamed upon the fair township of Grayling and it was only after the polls had closed for the day that he showed signs of weeping. The day was ideal and it did look as though the older and more feeble Republicans might find no difficulty in getting to the polls, but lo, all signs failed miserably and only the paltry number of 394 votes were cast. Only a few more than half the number that has been registered on some former elections.

And the Democrats and the friends of those candidates were there aplenty and they hopped upon the G. O. P. with a vengeance and smeared defeat all over the elephant. The importance of the offices carried away by the Democrats counted rather than numbers, otherwise their adversaries would have shared better. While the Democrats were copping off the best offices they permitted the Republicans to select the overseers of highways and the constables. And we, as one of the majority party and one of the defeated candidates, can find little or no consolation in overseers and constables. We have no highways to oversee and we would just as soon have a Democrat constable keep an eye on us as a Republican. Neither would be better.

Well, the Republicans got a rinning right. And after all, it's all right. We are all people of this community and have the community at heart and hope to see the interests well off and its affairs well administered, and the party principle was properly disregarded and the candidates selected were the choice of the people. They now have to assume official responsibility and it is up to the rest of the people to give them their moral support. This, we are sure, they will receive.

Tony Nelson, Democrat, was opposed by Clark Post, Republican, and was re-elected with a good majority. It was no disgrace to lose to Mr. Nelson. For two terms he has served his township in that capacity and has done his work well. Mr. Post is worthy in every respect and we are confident that there was nothing personal against him, for we have never heard anything but good of him.

As much as any of the other candidates. Good men were opposed by equally good men, and while the victors may well feel proud of their success, the defeated have no cause for humiliation.

A tabulated report of the election in the several townships may be found on this page.

ALFALFA TRAIN HERE NEXT TUESDAY

ALFALFA TRAIN HERE NEXT TUESDAY

AT M. C. DEPOT, 8:00 TO 11:30 A. M.

The alfalfa train traveling over the Michigan Central railroad with its staff of agricultural experts from the Michigan State College will be here Tuesday, April 12th.

The train will arrive here from Grandin, and will be open to visitors from 8:00 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. Exhibits, charts, lectures, discussions and moving pictures will be shown.

Everything of interest to the alfalfa grower and prospective grower will be covered. Sweet clover will be discussed. Every farmer should be interested in these two great crops of Michigan. A soil specialist and dairy specialist will be along to answer and discuss problems related to these subjects.

The train is really a section of the Michigan State College hauled here for the benefit of our farmers. Every farmer should take advantage of this opportunity. Bring in some soil for testing and see if your soil is in the proper condition for growing alfalfa and sweet clover. These crops are easy to grow but haphazard methods will certainly prove expensive.

The staff of college men will include such men as H. C. Rafter, L. D. Kurtz, P. E. Miller, J. G. Hayes, J. P. Cox and Dr. M. M. McGee. They will be on from time to time and it is expected they will be on here.

Come out, look for the white car near the depot, and get a few pointers on alfalfa, sweet clover and their relation to dairying and soil improvement.

The train goes from here to West Branch, where it will be open from 1:30 p. m. to 5:00 p. m. on April 12.

The election was as follows:
Supervisor—
Floyd A. Goshorn, R. 123

GOOD FELLOWSHIP CLUB NOTES

Mr. E. H. Hean gave an interesting talk on "City Planning," and the subject "Three Types of City Government" was talked on by Miss Harris. This was one of the most interesting meetings of the year.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES

The club met at the home of Mrs. Thomas Cassidy Monday evening, April 4th.

Mrs. Cassidy being also the director for the evening gave very interesting sketches of the lives of Lucy Larson, Edwin Markam and Wordsworth. Miss Swinton gave a short talk on the life of Shelley and read one of his poems "The Cloud." The club also read and discussed another of Shelley's poems "Ode to the West Wind," also "Knee-Deep in June" by James Whitcomb Riley and "June" from "The Vision of Sir Launfal" by James Russell Lowell.

Best of the N. Y. C.

To Mr. L. H. Chamberlin, who retired recently with pension, from the N. Y. C.

He was just a swell old fellow, As nice as he could be, Always wanting to do the right For the old N. Y. C.

He never shirked his duty, As far as we could see, And was on the job from morn till night To help the N. Y. C.

He marked the trains as they should be, And all of the men will see, That he was the best yard master They had on the old N. Y. C.

He has gone from us now, And we are as sad as can be, For he was a good old fellow, The best on the N. Y. C.

Contributed by a Brother-employee.

ROGERS ON FARM RELIEF

Speaking of farm relief bills, what do you think of this plan, proposed by Will Rogers that humorist and philosopher who sprang from the grass roots of Oklahoma to the mayoral chair in Beverly Hills.

"Here is my farm relief bill. Every time a southerner plants nothing on his farm but cotton, year after year, and the northerner nothing but wheat or corn, why, take a hammer and hit him twice between the eyes. You may dent your hammer, but it will do more real good than all the McNary-Huggins bills you can pass in a year."

Miss Mary D. Bailey, assistant United States district attorney in Chicago, has been instrumental in closing 1,000 saloons in that city. Evidently the lady is having more success than in the old days when the boys got together and tried to drink 'em dry.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning with services at nine o'clock at St. Mary's church of which the deceased was a most devoted member. Interment will be in Elmwood cemetery.

Surviving the young man other than his mother is one sister, Mrs. Everett Huffmaster of Marine City.

LEWIS JENSON FORMER GRAYLING MAN DIES AT EWEN

Lewis Jenson, pioneer lumberman died at his home in Ewen Sunday night. He was 70 years old and had lived in Michigan more than 50 years. He was a native of Denmark, and came to Michigan, settling at Manistee in the Centennial year. He began work in the woods in the employ of Salling Hanson Co., and when the firm transferred its operations from Manistee to Grayling, in the spring of 1878, Mr. Jenson came with them, and for a number of years was book-keeper for the firm. He was frugal and industrious, saved his money, and through the assistance of the firm he acquired some timber lands near Lewiston, and for a number of years operated saw mills at both Lewiston and Salling, until 1911, when he removed north across the Straits into Ontonagon county and erected mills at Ewen.

He was successful in business, and nearly regarded as a man of property and sterling worth. His wife was a former Grayling girl. Her maiden name being Miss Anna Rasmussen, and she and Mrs. J. K. Hanson are sisters.

The funeral was held at his late home on Tuesday, April 5th, and was largely attended by sympathizing friends. There were no children born to him, but they adopted a girl who grew up and was married. He is survived by his widow and the adopted daughter.

During his long illness he had a number of attacks, but each time rallied so much that he was able to be out and around again. His mother, Mrs. Burke was most faithful, putting forth every effort to find suitable treatment against the dread disease, and seeing to it that the patient had every comfort possible. He in turn was a very optimistic patient, never being heard to complain of his illness, although at times he suffered intense pain. He was of sterling character and enjoyed a fine circle of warm friends.

Two weeks ago Monday he walked down town, but the following Wednesday it was necessary to remove him to Mercy hospital where he grew weaker each day until the end came.

Mr. Prescott was born in Stillwater, Minnesota, September 19th, 1856. He enlisted to serve his country and spent three years in the Hospital corps in patrol duty on the Mexican border. Exposure to cold during this time is believed to have been the beginning of his illness. After being honorably discharged from the army he hired out on the railroad as fireman, and fired on the "Big Four" out of Indianapolis.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning with services at nine o'clock at St. Mary's church of which the deceased was a most devoted member. Interment will be in Elmwood cemetery.

Surviving the young man other than his mother is one sister, Mrs. Everett Huffmaster of Marine City.

The Home Guards met Wednesday evening with Miss Lois Sorenson. The main topic was concerning the missionary work being done in Alaska.

The story of the dog-tram, which carried the antitoxin to Nome in 1925 was especially interesting. The hospital which ministered to thousands of Eskimos during that diphtheria epidemic was the Columbus-Maynard hospital, which had been built and supported by the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church. An orphanage at Seward, Alaska is receiving special attention by the Home Guards of the United States, they furnishing a large portion of the funds to meet a great need among the orphan children of that north country.

Charles W. Kuehl, wealthy lumberman of Saginaw, was found dead in his summer home on the North Branch, near the Kellogg bridge Saturday afternoon. Cause of death is given as apoplexy. Mr. Kuehl had been coming to Crawford County for more than a quarter of a century and was the month of Big Creek. This place has long been noted for its magnificence and for its ideal location. Mr. Kuehl was reported to have been about 58 years of age. The remains were taken to Saginaw for burial Sunday afternoon.

TROUT FISHERMEN—AGAIN OUT OF LUCK ON AUSABLE RIVER

Sportsmen of Michigan have the first real reason for disagreement with the new conservation commission in the announcement coming from Lansing that the fly fishing order governing the Pere Marquette, Pine, Ausable and other rivers is to be allowed to stand again this year.

A well-known fly-fisherman comes forward to defend the order, claiming that under similar conditions, tried years ago, fishing on the Ausable improved until it was the best in the state, and that with the repeal of the order the stream became gradually depleted until today it is poor as any.

Which may all be true, but what of it? Is it in accordance with Michigan's idea of sportsmanship to restrict the fishing on these streams to a favored few in order to improve the fishing for these few?

If the sportsmen want to save the trout, and if they are ready at last to admit that fishing is to blame for the growing scarcity of the fish, a fact which they have persistently denied in times past, then the remedy is simple. Let the stream be closed to fishing until they can again stand an open season.

Then open it to all, that each angler in this free state, farm lad or gray-bearded settler who has loved his stream and fished it fairly with bait for half a century may follow its winding ribbon of silver along with the man from the city who has time and resources to afford fly fishing.

Probably no order enacted by the old conservation commission under the discretionary power act brought as great a storm of protest from fly and bait fishermen alike as this one. The anglers of Michigan will be disappointed to learn that the new commission does not see fit to immediately revoke a ruling obviously unfair and unpopular.—Roscommon Herald-News.

Health Talk

REMEMBER WHEN YOU TOOK YOUR FLANNELS OFF?

Remember how you hated winter underwear when you were a small person? Remember how wadded up you felt, how cribbed, cabined, and confined? Remember too, how in those good old days, you put it on and took it off by the calendar? Mother was firm about winter underwear those days, and it was kept on till May first or May fifteenth, weather regardless. What the thermometer said, mattered little. It was what the calendar said that counted. April might cheer you with its average temperature, but if it was not time for flannels to come off, flannels stayed on.

Remember, too, when a balmy out-of-season day came how we sometimes slipped upstairs, and took off that underwear, and how we tried to keep mother from finding it out, and how she did find it out, and we had a cold any time within the next two months; she attributed it to that one departure from the straight and narrow path of calendar rectitude? Times have changed since then, and some of us no longer wear winter flannels even in January so we have no opportunity of experiencing the bliss of taking them off May first or May fifteenth, whatever time.

Theories about clothing have undergone a change. Good authorities tell us today that we may attain salvation even though we do not observe the rite of winter underwear. They tell us, especially those of us who are employed in steam-heated offices or plant, and those of us who live in steam heated or furnace-heated houses or apartment, that we are better off without the winter underwear. They tell us that it is wise to dress lightly within doors, and when we go outdoors to put on extra clothing outside, the amount to be regulated by the temperature and the wind, not by the date of the calendar.

All of which is a more comfortable doctrine than the one we were brought up on.

But spring time is a changeable time, and in spring time the death curves mount, the obituary columns grow long, and doctors and nurses and undertakers and clergymen are very busy. March and April, and sometimes May, show higher death rates than other months, so it is a time for caution. It is a time to be especially careful to have sufficient clothing, although not too much. It is emphatically a time to go dry shod. If the feet do by any chance get wet, or are just persistently cold at night, shoes and stockings should be changed promptly, and the feet put in warm water. In stubborn cases rub to stimulate circulation, and make them warm. It is a time when children and grown folk should go to bed with warm feet. It is a time to sleep eight good hours with windows open, to eat plenty of wholesome food, to cover our own coughs and sneezes, and to keep away from the coughs and sneezes of other people, and in the matter of winter clothing to use judgment rather than the almanac.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agricultural Agent

The Alfalfa Train

The alfalfa train will be the big thing for farmers to think about now. It will be in Grayling Tuesday, April 12, from 8 o'clock in the morning to 11:30 that forenoon—no longer. Then there will be free dinner furnished visiting farmers by the Grayling Board of Trade. This will be followed by a get-together meeting of farmers and business men. We have secured a leader and main speaker for this get-together meeting, Mr. E. J. Leenhouts, general agricultural agent of the New York Central lines. Many will remember pleasant meetings with Mr. Leenhouts when he was agricultural agent for that part of the New York Central lines located in Michigan. We are very fortunate in securing him. Mr. Leenhouts knows our problems and our troubles, and has had such a touch with the life of the farmer that he deals ably and practically with them.

A farmer boy, a Michigan farmer boy, agricultural college graduate, soldier in the World War, field man for the Michigan Holstein Association, then agricultural agent for the railroad, Mr. Leenhouts knows our needs first hand. His experience direct with farmers and their problems, while working all along the line of Michigan Central railroad, caused him to know every bit of our northern country here. Taking part in potato shows, helping many of our county fairs, conferring with our northern county agents, going to many farms in many counties to see about loaning the community registered purebred bulls, owned by the railroad, helping in placing lines, helping in dairy alfalfa campaigns, in land clearing and fire prevention campaigns, meeting editors, bankers, business men, successful and unsuccessful farmers, he knows our country here almost better than we do.

Lucky

We were lucky to lure Mr. Leenhouts to come here from his office in the great LaSalle street depot in Chicago. Let's all be there to learn and to show our appreciation.

Why Get so "Hot Up?"

Yes, why get so "hot up" over the coming of the alfalfa train? Because there is good reason to be. Because alfalfa is the key that unlocks the door to agricultural success, to soil improvement, to the better dairy feeding on which much of our prosperity is going to depend.

Seems Strange!

It may seem strange that so much could depend upon one certain crop. It is true, however.

Without the alfalfa train, the wheel of the car and engine, railroad, would be almost impossible.

Without the carburetor or the spark plug, the auto would be almost impossible.

Without alfalfa, no such dairy yields; no such cheap hay; no such crops following plowed down; no such long-time stands of hay.

Found at Last

Before they found means to manage its gumminess, India rubber could not be put to the thousands of valuable services that it now gives.

So at last, when alfalfa was brought to our attention, there was found the very plant that had in itself the power to change our whole plan of farming—a wonderful servant for those who will take it and use it.

Two of Michigan's Important Crops Alfalfa and sweet clover are two of Michigan's important crops. They are the foundation of a good soil fertility program and are absolutely necessary for successful dairying.

Every farmer should have at least one-fourth of his cultivated acres devoted to alfalfa and sweet clover. They are not hard to grow, but hazardous methods will certainly prove expensive.

Visit the alfalfa train and see how the Michigan State College and successful farmers do it.

Almost Hay and Grain

Good alfalfa hay is almost hay and grain together.

Calling the feeding value of timothy 2, the feed value of clover is 1, the feed value of alfalfa is 11, for ton for ton. 2 to 11! How can the timothy farmer hope to stand up in the race with the alfalfa farmer?

Good for Everything

Your alfalfa is not only for the best hay known for dairy cows, it is food for horses.

Brood sows should have lots of it in winter. A sow and her pigs never does better than when in the alfalfa pasture that should be on every farm. Alfalfa leaves are splendid for hens, and good poultry men are learning to provide a steady supply of such for winter use.

Alfalfa, being a legume, has the power to fix in the soil such amounts of nitrogen gathered from the air that were to be bought that necessary nitrogen, would make the price of your wife's spring hat and clothes look like a bauble.

Plowed Under

The second growth of sweet clover plowed under or alfalfa sod matted under and fall plowed, gives the soil a square meal, the likes of which it has not had for a long, long time. The crops of corn or potatoes following such crops plowed under are a mute but convincing testimony of the value of that practice.

Right Here at Home

We have scattered through the county, farmers who can plainly tell you of the value to them that alfalfa has been in feeding—milk—cows. They can tell you of how much better the cows do when the layer of alfalfa hay is reached in the mow.

Why Scattered?

Why should we have to say, "Scattered through the county?" Why can't we say, "Every farm in the county fills the barn with alfalfa hay, and pastures on sweet clover in the summer." We ought to be able to say so. Why wait and shy off and look wise and hesitate? Thousands raise it. Anyone can. Let's hear the lectures on the train April 12 and see the demonstrations and get into the game.

Bring Soil Samples

Those who would like to have soil tested on the train can probably do so. Take a small tin can, line the field with you. Kick off a half inch of top soil. Pick up a spoonful. Put it into the can. Do this in 10 to 12 places in a kind of circle clear around the field. At each place where you take sample, dig down a foot and take out a spoonful from the bottom of the hole. Put this in a separate tin can. Bring them both to the train. Thus you will have a chance to get the soil and the subsoil tested, to tell how much lime you need, if any.

Alfalfa Club Prizes

We are going to form an alfalfa club to see who can raise the best alfalfa. Prizes of $10 and $5 will be put up, to be given a year from now to the farmers who have the best, second best, and third best fields from seed sowed this season. Judging will be done by competent outside persons. The contest will be between growers of 3 or more acres.

Chance for Business Men

If any business man wants to offer a prize of a peck or half-bushel of alfalfa or alfalfa or sweet clover, we will assist him.

If any farmer wants to trade a certain amount of alfalfa for a bushel of alfalfa or sweet clover, we will assist him.

Best genuine Grimm alfalfa costs $24 a bushel. Best white sweet clover costs $10.50 a bushel.

The Dinner

It is regretted that the free dinner cannot be offered to all who attend the alfalfa train. As our room is somewhat limited, we must stipulate that we must receive from not more than one person from each farm, a postal card by Monday noon, April 11, stating that we may plan on your attendance at the free dinner.

Grow more Alfalfa

Grow more Sweet Clover. Look for the White Car. Come to the Alfalfa Train.

MAROONED ON ISLAND IN ARIZONA

C. B. Olivarius, Writes of Western Journey

C. B. Olivarius, with Eddie Trudo, are on a trip to Santa Barbara, Calif. They left Grayling by auto, and according to Mr. Olivarius' promise to the Avalanche, has kindly compiled for us a letter telling about their travels. It reads as follows:

Mr. O. P. Schumann, Grayling, Michigan: Dear Sir:

When I left Grayling you asked me to write you a letter telling about my travel out west, and to comply with your wish I am sending you these lines. Meanwhile, as I have no time for telling about all the wonders I have seen on my trip through the many different states, today, I will limit myself to tell about a little travel experience which might be called, "Marooned on an island in Arizona."

We had stopped for the night at Pine, a little place of some 150 inhabitants, somewhere in Arizona, and we were to go from there to Camp Verde, we asked an U. S. official for information as to the conditions of the road. "Sure, you will not have any trouble in getting through, the stage is coming here regularly every day, and consequently it will be easy for you to cross the Verde river. The worst part of the road is the first four or five miles out of town, but later on you will have a good road."

I quote him literally that we may not be accused of foolishness. He was right in that the first part of the road was rough. Put the "Three Sisters" on top of one another, make a road straight up the slope and cover it with two feet of muddy clay, and you have a faint idea of the first part of the road. Slowly we climbed it, or rather crawled up, foot for foot, through a forest of mixed timber, among which were many beautiful pines. Continually climbing we left the forest behind us and up the mountain side, naked except for some few bushes. At last we reached the summit, how far up we had climbed I dare not tell, as my figures might not be exact, but we were very high up and around us we saw snow covered peaks. Then we had to go down. The road was a shelf on the mountain side following its contours. Often the curves took my breath away and often my hair stood on end when I looked at the mountain side towering straight up in the air at one side of the narrow shelf and the abyss yawning at the other side, five or six hundred feet straight down.

The scenery was great, the mountain country in all its grandeur and the road itself was a masterpiece of engineering art. At last we came down into a valley, forced Clear Creek, quite a large creek, that had about two feet of water but lots of boulders in the bed and the car danced like a boat on heavy seas. After three hours' drive we had made 33 miles. We reached Verde River, a large river, undoubtedly at least 20 or 300 yards wide. The official at Pine had sent us on a fool errand. Driving was not possible, and a man who apparently knew conditions, advised us to make a detour of some seventy miles. It was more than double this figure and we could find a bridge that would take us across the river, but the road was rough and hard to find for a stranger. We got a young fellow to act as guide and we started over a road leading over mountains and down in valleys and rough to say the least. After a drive of about fifteen miles we came to a little creek that we had to ford. The creek itself was not very large, but the banks were steep and the car took a dive down the bank in the creek and there it stood. It took us more than an hour to get the car up and across the creek. Then only a drive of fifty yards and a new creek much larger and whose waters rushed in rapids over the rocks. We found a place where it was possible to ford, but on the bank we got stuck and we had now more than two hours to get the car free, and to cross the creek. We hoped the boy now the horses were over but after a drive of about three hundred yards we came to another creek, still larger than that we had forded and with very steep rocky banks. Our guide waded the creek to take away some boulders that would hinder our climbing of the opposite bank, but suddenly the waters started to rise and in a few minutes it rose at least two feet and the comparatively peaceful creek was transformed to a roaring river, whose rapids could stand a comparison with the rapids of Niagara river.

The water rose continually, forcing us to absolutely impossible and we turned back to the creek that we had crossed fifteen minutes ago, only to find that this time it had changed its character and by now was a foaming torrent. Retreat was impossible. We were marooned on a little island surrounded on all sides by foaming rivers. A decision had to be taken in a hurry. We could not go anywhere in the car and had to stay on the island the night over, while our guide and one of the company should try to make one of the creeks and go for help. With difficulty they crossed the river, while we prepared for the night. We had no food with us and we were not so lucky as the hero of my childhood, Robinson Crusoe, to find anything eatable on the "little island," that measured one thousand yards by three hundred. Happily we had lots of wood as the island was covered by scattered trees, cottonwood and other sorts. We built a big fire and enjoyed the wonderful evening, it was full moon. We examined our little island, saw tracks of different kinds of game and at sunset flocks of ducks passed overhead. In reality we were not sorry that fate had marooned us in such a strange, interesting place. We were alone with nature in its grandeur, no noise except the roaring of the waters disturbed the stillness of the evening and the moon and bright stars looked so friendly down to us. It was an evening that awakened serious thoughts. Then to bed. A car is not a Pullman sleeper, but it is possible to find rest therein and we slept more or less. The morning fine but cold and a new fire was necessary. About noon rescue came, a wagon and team, and we came across the creek, whose waters had fallen about four feet. It was a hard job and for more than five minutes the car was stuck in the mud of the river, while the waters streamed in on the floor of it. We forded without any difficulty two or three quite large creeks and had then a good road to the bridge that led to Camp Verde.

It was quite an experience to become marooned on an island in the middle of a big state.

With my best regards, Sincerely yours,

C. B. Olivarius.

Here is another letter telling of the same trip. It was written by Mr. Trudo to his old employer, T. E. Douglas, the local Nash dealer. Of course Eddie is enthusiastic about the performance of the Nash car they were driving, but he should have had our Buick—O Boy! While the letters tell more or less of the same thing, yet each is written from a different viewpoint and both are very interesting.

Santa Barbara, Calif. Mar. 21, 1927.

Dear Mr. Douglas:

Arrived at our destination last Friday, and as I promised to let you know just how we fared, will live up to it.

All in all, we had a very interesting and splendid trip. The only trouble we had was mostly punctures, and at that we had but four. One of our tires gave out completely so consequently had to buy a new one. Had once to take the vacuum tank off to fix the front loose. Otherwise, we had no more trouble. You made a real good guess when you calculated our gas and oil expense to be $80, because it came to $79.66. Of course, we could have done it much cheaper, but we changed oil quite often. We made in all, 8,550 miles and used 307 1/2 gallons of gas. I'll tell you frankly, as I would anyone else, we were damn proud of the old Nash, and now that we've got it cleaned up, she looks as good as ever, and runs like new.

We struck some, or I should say, lots of bad roads, but they didn't seem to worry the car any until we got off from the main trail up in Arizona. We tried to take a short-cut from Roosevelt dam up to Grand Canyon. There was lots of snow in the mountains, so we had many rivers to ford. You see, when the snow is melting these rivers get pretty deep, but we were stuck in one, with the front axle buried into the mud. It was more than got it out when we were in the middle of the river, but I had the motor running on the bank in clay. It was never a job to get her out, but we did it.

Forded one river where the water was from four to six inches over the running boards, got on to an island and before we could make it across, the next river, which was about 300 feet away, the water rose to about three feet. It was then impossible to turn back. The only thing we could do was to leave the car on high dry, and take a chance on losing it for good, as these mountain streams come with a terrible force. Oil and Guy stayed in the car all night. We had had nothing to eat since morning, and as we had worked our heads off digging the car out of the mud, we were feeling sort of gaunt. It was then about six o'clock p. m., so I struck out for the next town which was exactly sixteen miles away. Waded two rivers up to my waist and finally came to a ranch. Got a horse and rode through the mountains for twelve miles. It was real movie-like, Ed, to see me homing back tearing through mountain trails in the dark. It really was no joke. Had to cross two large rivers on horseback. The water was more than belly deep on the horse and, believe me, it was a swift stream. It wouldn't have been half so bad if it hadn't been for the boulders in the stream. The horse had one helluva time to keep on its feet and my heart was choking me all the time.

Reached Camp Verde quite late that evening and when I did get there I could hardly walk. It felt as though the damned saddle was still between my legs when I got down from the horse. Was so sore in the morning that I couldn't stand to ride back to the car, and besides, I knew we would have to have a team to help us through the stream, so I had to hire a wagon and team to take me large space, or the expenditure of more money in our columns. It simply records our conviction that if a merchant is planning to use two hundred inches of advertising in two months, that he should get his advertisements appearing in the Avalanche as soon as possible. The average week will do more for his business than one or two large splurges.

Advertising, like everything else, never have done it alone. We then requires foresight. A merchant who expects printer's ink to work miracles for him is doomed to lose the money that he spends in advertising. He must put a fellow on the other side, and some thought into what he is saying when he gets across, he said he would give that car some credit for being a Three. That done, and regularly done, will push water up as far as the middle of the headlights. Of course, it wasn't that high all over the car, but it's a wonder, Ed, that a car will do a thing like that. If someone had told me it would, I would have called them a liar. That was one day, or two days of real hardship. The rest of the trip was fine after giving up the idea of trying to get to Grand Canyon.

Hope to get work out here inside of a month, but it won't be in the mechanical line, if I can help it. It is a real beautiful country. Splendid weather and a fine city.

Would be glad to hear from you if you have time. If I ever come back, I'll advertise the Nash car some, because now I have a real reason for doing so.

Yours truly, Eddie.

My address is 1619 Adams Court, Bath St., Santa Barbara, Calif.

PROFITABLE ADVERTISING

When this newspaper talks advertising the average merchant skips the article feeling that here is propaganda against his pocketbook. The exceptional merchant, however, is glad to learn what the newspaper man thinks. He may use the idea, or he may not, but he knows he will never be hurt by considering anything.

With this introduction let us urge local advertisers to be regular. This idea has nothing to do with the use of Labor may feel it is the first duty of industry to pay a living wage. The consumer often feels industry's first duty is to him. But the public may reasonably demand that it share with industry and labor the further distribution of profits after the latter two have had a fair return on their capital and labor invested.

THE PUBLIC'S RIGHT

One of the most unsatisfactory conditions we know of is to have eight-cylinder ideas on a four cylinder income.
